THE ENEMY WITHIN

"Yes, we know we're at war with Hitler, and we know that he's very popular with loads of Germans, but the three million Germans living over here are different. The fact the large numbers of British German youths spent the summer rioting and racially attacking the inhabitants of many English towns is irrelevant. The Nazi sympathisers who held demonstrations against the RAF in London and Birmingham are only a minority, and have got no support among the vast majority of British Germans. And as for the widespread celebrations among British Germans when Nazi hijackers crashed a Zeppelin into the Empire State Building killing 7,000 people, we don't think the subject should even be mentioned."

Just imagine what people would have thought if Winston Churchill had said that back in October 1940, just after the Battle of Britain. But change the words 'German' into 'Muslim' and 'Nazi' into 'Taliban', and you get the picture.

Tony Blair and the entire British Establishment have been falling over themselves to claim that we are at war with terrorism, not with Islam. In order to make this Politically Correct lie stick, Blair, Duncan-Smith, the BBC and all the rest of them have LIED by saying that Islam is 'peaceful', when, in reality it is the most aggressive religion in history.

They've all LIED by saying that most 'British' Muslims condemned the Manhattan Massacre when, as our report on page 2 shows, news of the slaughter led to spontaneous celebrations and mockery of remembrance ceremonies in Muslim areas the length and breadth of Britain. And they've all LIED by going on and on about a handful of instances - which Freedom condemns without reservation - where wound-up yobs have abused ordinary Asians in the street or vandalised mosques, while deliberately covering up the wave of far more serious attacks by young Muslims against their white neighbours since September 11th. These have included the anti-white racist gang murder of 17-year-old Ross Parker in Peterborough.

Truly, Britain today faces enemies within. They include some (but not all) Muslims, most (but not all) journalists, and every single politician who parrots the Politically Correct lie that terrorism has nothing to do with Islam.

AS THE WEST MOURNS, MUSLIMS CELEBRATE!

The mainstream media have given coverage to the outrageously offensive statements of Islamic fundamentalists such as Omah Bakri and Abu Hamsa, and rather more time and space to moderate Muslims who have joined in the condemnations of the attacks in the USA. But what they have studiously avoided is the widespread evidence as to which side large numbers of ordinary Muslims - particularly the young, British-born ones - are taking.

In the interests of truth, and so that the general public can have a better understanding of the nature of the Islamic Trojan Horse in our midst, we publish here a list of the reliable accounts we have had so far of some 'British' Muslims rejoicing in the mass murder. We have no doubt that these incidents are only the tip of an ugly iceberg of hatred:

● Finsbury Park mosque. Pro-terror demonstrations, graffiti and anti-white posters. These have been covered in the mainstream press, but with the spin that this is a 'one-off' at Abu Hamsa's own House of Hate.

● Forest Gate, East London. Local residents sickened by sounds of cheering and celebrations coming from Romford Road mosque on the evening of the slaughter. Muslims leaving the mosque drove off hooting their horns, shouting and waving.

● Slough. Letter in Daily Telegraph to express disgust at having witnessed a class of 15-year-old British-born Pakistanis cheering, punching the air and mocking the tearful singing of the American national anthem.

● Harrow. Fireworks let off during the three minutes silence on Friday.

● Cardiff. Young Muslims celebrate in city centre with flags on the evening of the attack.

● Birmingham, Small Heath. Celebrations inside and outside local mosque.

● Birmingham, Aston. Serious ten-

Omar Bakri Mohammed, not an isolated extremist as is claimed, has mass support in Britain sion in main Royal Mail sorting office after Muslim workers applaud the attacks.

● Solihull, Land Rover Plant. Three workers suspended after mocking the three minute silence. Security staff had to escort them from the building to prevent them from being attacked.

● Derby. Local residents disgusted as celebrations in a mosque spill out onto the street with flag waving and chants of triumph.

● Oldham. Cheering inside and outside mosques. White workers in Littlewoods Call Centre appalled when Muslim co-workers respond to news of the attack by "jumping up and down with joy." Schoolchildren celebrate at Grange School with further celebrations along Waterloo Street.

● Oldham. Park Cake Bakery. 4 Muslims sacked after cheering during 3 minute silence.

● Oldham. Waterloo Street. "Cheering and dancing in the street" after news of the attack broke.

● Burnley. A would-be customer in a major shop in the town centre couldn't find any staff to serve him on the afternoon of the attack. Walking through the shop he found the eight shop assistants - all of them obviously Muslims - crowded around a TV set at the back of the shop, laughing and shaking hands as they watched the footage of the mayhem. Fireworks let off on the evening of the attack in Stoneyholme.

● Rotherham. Muslim youths sounding car horns on the evening of the attack.

● Edinburgh. Carloads of young Muslims circle city centre hooting horns and cheering on the evening of the massacres.

● Dewsbury, West Yorks. During a class discussion among pupils studying law at Huddersfield New College, every single one of the the Muslim pupils (all of them girls) said that the terrorist attacks were a good thing and that they agreed with them. The discussion got so heated between the whites and the Muslims that the teacher had to cancel the discussion and move on to something else.

● Ilford, London. Shopper in Ilford Broadway were shocked by the vitriolic anti-Amerand anti-white message being put out by a bearded Islamic fundamentalist who was there with a stall and a group of followers. Locals called the police, but described them as being "as much use as lollipops" after they refused to take any action. Muslim passers-by stopped to voice their support for the extremist and for the attacks, resulting in tensions and verbal clashes with angry Brits, who also pointed out to the police that if the BNP were to set up a stall they would probably arrest them immediately.

● Marston radiator factory, Bradford. Widespread refusal of Muslims to observe the silence or even to switch off machines as instructed.

● Dewsbury, West Yorks. During a class discussion among pupils studying law at Huddersfield New College, every single one of the Muslim pupils (all of them girls) said that the terrorist attacks were a good thing and that they agreed with them. The discussion got so heated between the whites and the Muslims that the teacher had to cancel the discussion and move on to something else.

● M62, Lancashire On the M62 motorway, a van full of Asians complete with a very large picture of bin Laden in window were shouting obscenities & gesturing to passing traffic.

● Luton. IBC factory. Scuffles between Muslim workers on one side and whites/Indians and blacks on the other. One Muslim worker sacked after speaking out in favour of the attacks.

● Luton. Arndale shopping centre. Shoppers appalled by large groups of young Muslims cheering and punching the air, and by catcalls during the three minute silence.

TACKLE THE TERRORISTS IN OUR OWN BACKYARD!

IT'S all very well Tony Blair jetting off to Russia and Pakistan to whip up support for America's war against Islamic terrorism, but nine out of ten Britons believe he should show the same sort of commitment to defeating the IRA!

For over thirty years terrorists have been striking at the very heart of Britain with explosives and weapons bought with funds raised in America. Britons in Ulster and on the mainland have been bombed, murdered and maimed by the IRA, but successive British Governments have done nothing to combat these terrorists.

In fact, Tony Blair has done more than most in aiding and abetting terrorism. The 1998 Good Friday Agreement gave freedom to hundreds of convicted terrorists. Since 1998 the IRA should have been decommissioning their arms, but not one weapon has been handed in, and the Government has done nothing to tackle the terrorists.

NO, IT'S NOT NEW YORK: This is Omagh on 15th August 1998 after an IRA bomb destroyed the town centre and killed 29 people. Where was Tony Blair's anti-terrorist crusade then?

In a Gallup Poll conducted the week prior to the Labour Party conference, the British people gave the Government a clear mandate to crack down on the IRA.

* 89% of Britons think the IRA and its allies are a terrorist organisation!

* 80% believed the IRA and its allies are enemies of Britain!

* 68% were convinced the 1998 Good Friday Agreement on prisoner release was a mistake!

* 79% called for the expulsion of Sinn Fein from the Northern Ireland Executive!

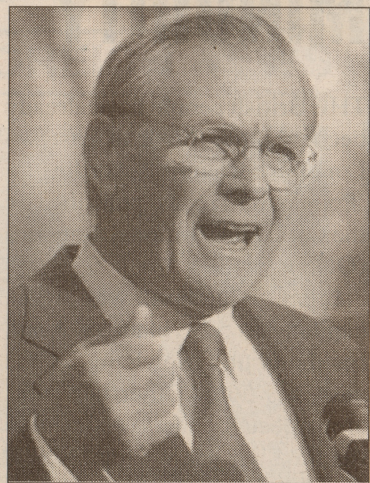

MADNESS MUSHROOMS FROM MANHATTAN MASSACRE

From the unquenchable anger and insoluble grief that has cut right across America since September 11th comes a touch of madness that chillingly warns Britain not to be the poodle of the U.S.A. and to qualify our support for any military action.

The Pentagon is recommending the use of a nuclear strike should conventional weapons fail to flush out Osama Bin Laden from his Taliban hideout. Apparently the Department of Defense is concerned that American public opinion will not be satisfied by just air raids or the odd cruise missile being fired into Afghanistan, while the loss of American forces on the inhospitable terrain of the Muslim stronghold could lead to a backlash against the Bush administration.

U.S. Defense Secretary, Donald Rumsfeld, refused to rule out the use of tactical nuclear weapons when interviewed on ABC's "This Week" programme, only answering repeated questions on the subject

RUMSFELD: Refused to rule out the nuclear option by a curt, "We will not discuss operational and intelligence matters". Any nuclear strike, tactical or otherwise is sheer lunacy and would open a Pandora's Box of responses from any Muslim country with a nuclear, chemical or biological warhead capability and send us spiralling into World War Three.

Britain has a crucial role to play in the war against terrorism. We must give our ally sound advice and show how a joint military and political response can combat the evil but with the minimum loss of life.

On the military front the Alliance should support the forces currently at war against the fundamentalist terror threat. The anti-Taliban forces in Afghanistan should be backed-up with Alliance advisors, equipment and men to launch an all-out campaign with the goal of defeating the Taliban and returning Afghanistan to civilised rule. The same sort of support should be given to the Governments of Serbia, Russia and Macedonia who are trying to remove the same Muslim fundamentalist terrorist from their countries. On the political front the terrorist threat can be confronted by the arrest and detention of all Muslim fundamentalists who preach sedition, and their deportation to a Muslim country of their choice.

To make any campaign against terrorism effective you must make sure that the terrorist is unable to draw sympathy from a larger public by exploiting genuine injustices and grievances. The Israeli occupation of Palestine and their domination of the Palestinian people is an injustice that fuels the fundamentalists' terror campaign. America and Britain should be talking of peace and a just settlement in the Middle East rather than talking of war and nuclear strikes in Afghanistan. Justice for Palestine would destroy the terrorists by removing the grievance from one of their main bases of support. A nuclear strike, on the other hand, would increase support for their campaigns and give the terrorists an air of legitimacy.

WE NEED BRITISH-OWNED FACTORIES!

Cumbria, the county in England's farthest north-west corner that has been hitting the headlines throughout 2001 as Britain's foot and mouth hotspot, faced more grim news last month, but this time on the employment front.

160 jobs are to go at Whitehaven's Marchon phosphates factory and Circuit Foil (UK) have finally sold their Silloth Airfield factory, ending any hope that there might have been a return by the company that ten years ago was the town's main employer.

Luxembourg company Circuit Foil (UK) closed its Silloth factory in 1992 with the loss of 200 jobs. The local economy was devastated as the original company, Yates Circuit Foil, had been in Silloth since the mid-1960s. Initially it was hoped that the factory might be sold to another company as a going concern to safeguard the jobs, but the Luxembourg owners, rather than face competition in the British market, decided just to mothball the factory and trade from their European head office. For nearly a decade the factory stayed in the hands of Circuit Foil (UK) giving rise to a hope for Silloth's beleaguered workforce that the company might return to the coastal town. But now all the equipment has been removed and the factory sold to a local transport firm.

Circuit Foil (UK): A factory mothballed for ten years, now gutted and left in a dilapidated state.

The former Treatment Works, to the side of the main factory, have been gutted and the buildings left in a dangerous and dilapidated state. A spokesman for Circuit Foil told Freedom that Britain's requirements were now being met from Luxembourg.

What a way to treat a town and a people that have given a quarter of a century of loyal service.

Whitehaven's Marchon factory was originally owned by British chemicals firm Albright & Wilson but was taken over by French company Rhodia just 12 months ago. Immediately alarm bells were ringing amongst the local workforce as rumours abounded that the phosphates factory was to be asset-stripped and closed.

At first the French company denied the rumours, but then, in July, they announced they would be closing the factory.

Process worker, Tom Barwise, who had been at the factory for 25 years is scathing: "We have been stabbed in the back right from the beginning. The whole thing stinks and the workforce is gutted."

What's happening in Cumbria is not unique, it's happening all over Britain.

Foreign-owned companies are pulling out of their UK operations in the face of the global economic slowdown. Companies like Rhodia and Circuit Foil freely admit that their allegiance lies with their workers in their own country, and in difficult times they must look to their needs first.

This effectively makes British workers working for foreign-owned companies second class employees and the first expendable commodity.

The necessary bond between employers and employees to achieve success can only be based on mutual aspirations and needs, and the national interest. British workers mustn't be made the sacrificial lambs through which foreign companies survive the recession.

THE BNP AND IMMIGRATION

The BNP is best known for its policy on immigration. The BNP opposes immigration into the UK because, according to Britain's leading population experts, the native British people will be a minority in this country in just a few short decades.

To avoid this, we will halt all further immigration and asylum seeking, and introduce a system of voluntary resettlement whereby immigrants resident in Britain will be encouraged, but not forced, to return to their lands of native origin.

Should they choose to return home, the government would provide all the necessary funds, and should some choose to stay, they can, and will be provided the full protection of the law.

The British National Party is opposed to 'multiculturalism', and the massive conflict and hatred it causes.

We feel that all forms of life on this planet are sacred and should be preserved, but the BNP specifically wishes to preserve those ethnic differences which make up the rich tapestry of mankind. We oppose those who are determined to destroy all cultures and all races to achieve a multi-racial mish-mash. We believe firmly in ethnic and national identity.

To protect and preserve the ethnic and cultural integrity of the British people — and of others too, the party believes that all races and peoples have a right to a homeland.

All peoples need a homeland. The British too need a homeland. Yet very soon we will lose ours, because we cannot bring ourselves to say 'no' to immigration. In short, Britain is being colonised.

The British people were never given the chance to vote on whether they wanted Britain to become a 'multicultural' society. It was forced on us by the politicians against the clear wishes of the people.

To sum up, the British National Party is fighting for the very right to exist of not just the British people, but of all peoples and cultures around the world against those who seek to destroy all forms of identity.

NEW LABOUR = OLD TORY

No wonder Tony Blair breathed a huge sigh of relief when the tragic events in America on September 11th brought him scuttling back to London and saved him from an embarrassing afternoon at the TUC Conference in Brighton.

For the second year running, the leader of New Labour avoided the wrath of union delegates (last Labour now. The £6 million donated annually to the party by the TUC is dwarfed by the donations given by Labour's new friends - global big business. New Labour doesn't need the TUC anymore, so they don't have to pretend to care about the British worker.

They can carry on flooding this country with foreign imports and cheap foreign labour in the the coffee shops and 'gay' bars of Hampstead, Kensington, Notting Hill and Islington.

They have deserted the British workforce because they think they don't need them any more.

Tony Blair and his deputy, arch-traitor John Prescott, know that urban Britain will never vote Tory, and won't vote Lib-Dem, so even without their support New Labour can hang on to power.

But Blair & Co might have miscalculated if the voting trend in June's General Election for one North-West town is anything to go by.

In Oldham East and Saddleworth, New Labour's vote dropped by 5,010 from the 1997 election and the British National Party's vote was up by 5,091. In Oldham West and Royston, New Labour's vote was down by 6,453 and the BNP's vote was up by 6,552.

But being out of favour with the unions doesn't bother New knowledge that their actions are being warmly applauded by the party's biggest backers.

New Labour no longer has its roots in the industrial towns and cities of central and northern Britain. The party's roots now are in

SURVEY SETS ALARM BELLS RINGING IN OLDHAM

THE 1997 'Projected Population By Ethnic Group Survey' conducted by Oldham Metropolitan Borough Council will have to be radically re-written after the staggering figures released by the Office for National Statistics last month detailing the growth of Britain's ethnic minorities.

In 1997 Oldham had a population of 219,000 of which 194,500 were white and 24,500 were from the ethnic minorities.

Since 1991 there has been a massive change in the racial make-up of the town, with the Pakistani and Bangladeshi population increasing by 28%.

According to the ONS Survey, that racial make-up will change even further by 2011 with the white population reduced to 169,000 and the ethnic minorities more than doubled to 50,000.

The population boom will mainly be seen within the town's Bangladeshi community with their population increasing by 30% every five years.

The town's relatively small Afro-Caribbean community will

The inevitable result of multiculturalism, racial conflict and communal strife

LONDON, BIRMINGHAM, LEICESTER: WHITES BECOMING THE MINORITY

THE British people have already become a minority in at least two London boroughs according to 'Population Trends' published by the Office For National Statistics (ONS).

Brent, in the north west of the capital, has 57% black or Asian residents and Newham, in the east, has 56%. Other boroughs are expected to follow suit over the next ten years with 230,000 mainly white residents leaving the capital in the past 12 months, while 50,000 'settlers' have arrived from abroad. Despite this apparent shortfall London's population continues to grow because the newcomers have a higher fertility rate and produce larger families, and asylum-seekers are being channelled into the capital.

London's white population are not alone in seeing their majority status being eroded away. Local authority leaders in Birmingham and Leicester are predicting that whites will be a minority in their cities by the year 2020. The figures also show that ethnic minority population growth is around 15% every fifteen years, and that the white population growth rate is around 1% every fifteen years.

Refugees on their way to Britain: Immigration has become an invasion!

"The failure to tackle the asylum crisis is just another chapter in the long history of governments' failure to tackle immigration, illegal or otherwise."

"If Cabinet ministers were having asylum seekers stationed in their constituencies or near their homes, remedies would, of course, be rapidly found."

Andrew Alexander
Daily Mail

"The nightly invasion of this country by 'persecuted' asylum seekers further serves to illustrate the Government's incompetence in dealing with anything resembling a national crisis."

"Tony Blair is supremely naive if he expects the French officials on the Channel coast to do anything other than wave bon voyage as the invaders jog past them on their one-way trip. How our Government's pathetic attitude contrasts with that of the Australian Prime Minister John Howard who defended his country's laws and stood firm!"

Jon Elson

"It is widely said that Islamic terrorists are wholly unorthodox in their belief that their religion sanctions what they do, and promises the immediate reward of heaven to what we call 'suicide bombers' but they insist are martyrs to the faith. This line is bolstered by the assertion that Islam is essentially a religion of peace and that the very word 'Islam' means 'peace'."

"Alas, not so. Islam means 'submission,' a very different matter, and one of the functions

"If the fight to extirpate terrorism turns into an anti-Muslims crusade, we shall recruit an additional 400 million suicide bombers. So Jewish settlements in the occupied territories must be dismantled, and Israel must withdraw to its internationally recognised boundaries in return for the most stringent security guarantees."

METROPOLITAN POLICE LOSES ITS MARBLES

What do you do when the London borough with the highest rate of street crime is 113 police officers short?

What do you do when muggings in that same borough rise by 55% in 12 months to reach a record 760 for the month of July? Why, of course, you remove 37 'bobbies on the beat' and send them to another London borough!

Why, of course, you stop making drug use an offence so that officers can turn a blind eye to what would be a crime in any other part of Britain!

Yes, the Metropolitan Police has lost its marbles. Under a plan called 'Resource Allocation Formula', the Met is proposing to leave crime black-spot Lambeth 150 police officers short in order to allocate additional officers where you are not 'booked' for smoking cannabis in public. The police have been instructed to 'turn a blind eye' to these law-breakers, or if that is impossible, to 'warn' them of the dangers of drug abuse!

Not surprisingly residents in Lambeth are voting with their feet and moving, not only out of the borough, but out of London, because they don't feel safe or Crime hotspots or people with English as a second language?

What do you do when drug trafficking in the borough is out of control and drug usage and drug-related crime is reaching such a level that the fabric of local society is on the verge of collapse?

to other London boroughs experiencing increases in population due to an influx of people with English as a second language.

The officer shortage is the reason why Lambeth is the only borough in the whole of Britain don't want to bring their children into such a depressing world. One Norwood resident told a 'Talk Radio' phone-in programme, "I'm off. Law and order has broken down and the Metropolitan Police are making no effort to re-establish it."

BRING BACK STUDENT GRANTS!

BRITAIN's working class youngsters are losing out when it comes to higher education because Government funding directly discriminates against them. New Labour's education policy provides 500% more public spending on higher education for the wealthiest fifth of the UK population, than for the poorest fifth.

port during their first term or semester to ensure they stay on course. They don't like the idea of being in debt, are concerned about the financial pressures placed on their families and worry about employment prospects they have completed their degree.

The BNP believes that...
- Government funds should be

University: a place where students from all classes should be able to feel at home

To pay the current tuition fees of £1,075 a year is proving a great burden to many working class parents. They have always struggled to give their children a complete education, and since the scrapping of student grants in favour of student loans, have been hit even harder.

But it is not just the difficulties in paying the fees that is putting working class students off Britain's universities. Many of them often feel marginalised by university culture and need more supported to those who need them most.

- Additional money should be provided for extra tutorial and induction support for students with little family experience of university.

- Tuition fees should be abolished and student grants re-introduced.

- The levels of student drop-out for reasons of economic hardship must be reversed.

- More information should be available about student finances for non-traditional students.

WHITE LAD KILLED IN RACIST ATTACK

It is becoming apparent that the extra powers given to the police and courts to come down heavily on racially motivated attacks must only be used when there is an ethnic minority victim. Cambridge Police described the murder of 17 year-old Ross Parker in Peterborough on 20th September as a 'motiveless attack'.

Ross was murdered at Borges Boulevard in the town when he was set upon by a gang of ten Asians. The fact that Ross Parker was white and his attackers were Asian was irrelevant according to the police. But it would have been a completely different story if the roles had been reversed and the victim had been Asian. The 'senseless attack' would have become a racist murder!

Readers will remember when Walter Chamberlain was attacked by three Asian youths when making his way home after watching a rugby game in Oldham. He was so brutally assaulted that his cheekbones and eye sockets were fractured and photographs of the pensioner's injuries shocked the whole country. Mr Peter Wright, QC, for the prosecution said that the motivation behind the attack was racist and that the pensioner was picked on because of the colour of his skin.

But Judge Woodward refused to accept that the brutal assault on Mr. Chamberlain was a racist attack: "I am satisfied that there is no evidence for the jury to come to the conclusion that this serious attack was motivated by race." Can you imagine a similar summing up if the attackers had been white and the victim a vulnerable Asian pensioner? Whites just don't count!

Where We Stand

The British National Party has a stance on all the major issues affecting our nation. Here is a list of our policies on the most important areas of the day such as immigration, Europe, crime, health, education, defence and the environment:

- A massive expansion of Freedom and Democracy to roll back the erosion of our traditional freedoms and truly reflect the wishes of the people; the adoption of popular referenda & hi-tech direct democracy.
- The establishment of a government that puts British interests first.
- An end to immigration and the scandal of bogus asylum-seekers flooding Britain. The use of the billions now wasted in foreign aid to fund generous 'Homeward Bound' schemes to encourage immigrants to return to their lands of origin.
- British withdrawal from the European Union: trade with Europe where it suits us but no political ties, and no monetary union.
- The use of the £1.8 million per hour we at present pay the EU to fund the restoration of an effective National Health Service and proactive measures to produce a healthier population in the first place.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources including the mass media.
- Protection of British jobs and industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.
- The introduction of tax incentives and other policies designed to ensure that the City finances British industry rather than foreign competitors.
- The regeneration of British farming, with the object of achieving the maximum self-sufficiency in food; also the restoration of the fishing industry by protection of our traditional fishing grounds.
- A healthy environment for a healthy people — the protection of our countryside; a ban on greenfield-site house building except in cases of genuine local need; an end to field trials of genetically modified crops.
- A crack-down on crime and tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty for child killers and terrorists.
- A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and an end to the 'trendy' teaching methods which have failed our children so badly.
- An alternative defence strategy based on the principle of armed neutrality; no British blood should be shed in conflicts which do not involve vital British interests. The restoration of the County Regiment system and reversal of the defence cuts which have weakened our Armed Forces and cost thousands of jobs.
- The crushing of the IRA and other terrorist groups, the termination of the Anglo-Irish agreement and the establishment of a devolved, non-sectarian parliament in Northern Ireland.
- A return to healthy moral values and policies aimed at strengthening the family and community. Tough penalties for corruption in public life.

YET ANOTHER BROKEN PROMISE FROM LABOUR

NEW Labour, in 1997, promised to safeguard the future of school playing fields. David Blunkett, then Education Secretary, promised "I will ensure those playing fields which schools and local communities need are not sold in the future."

In a speech in December 1999 Tony Blair confirmed Labour's pledge, promising to end the Tory policy of forcing schools to sell off their playing fields. But it's all proved to be just more empty words. Department of Education figures, revealed in September, showed that over the last three years just 3.5% of applications to turn school playing fields into housing estates, car parks, roads and shops, have been turned down.

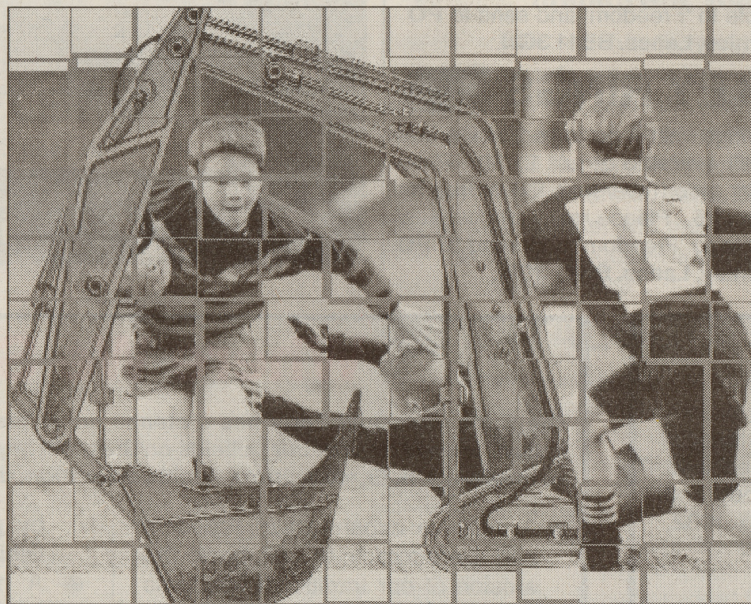

And things are getting worse. Out of 103 development applications in the last fifteen months only two have been turned down. Director of the National Playing Fields Association, Elsa Davies, can offer few crumbs of comfort, "The outlook for school playing fields is bleak and likely to remain so. Politicians have stood by and allowed the sale of our recreational family silver."

The problem is that education is not being properly funded so schools have to sell-off their assets to keep afloat. They need continuous investment to hang on to their school playing fields which demand constant maintenance.

Isn't it about time money from the National Lottery was channelled directly into education instead of being wasted, by the £million, on crackpot millennium-type projects!

Schools around the country are being forced to sell their playfields because of Government underfunding

IMPORTING CHEAP LABOUR

Over 3,300 nurses have been recruited from the Philippines to help keep down nurses' wages and help hospital trusts balance their books.

8,403 foreign nurses are registered in Britain mainly coming from India, Ghana and Malawi, forcing British nurses to look to America for the fitting remuneration their training and expertise deserves. Meanwhile Home Secretary, David Blunkett, has pledged to increase the number of permits allowing foreigner workers to come to Britain. The move is designed to keep wages low and increase the profits for big business.

Letters

Write to: The Editor, Voice of Freedom, PO Box 1032, Woodford Green, IG8 9GN

Sir: After watching Nick Griffin being interviewed in such a shamelessly biased way on programmes such as 'Tonight With Trevor McDonald', it's clear that the BNP will never receive fair and objective treatment from any of the mainstream media.

The party therefore needs to find ways of reaching the populace directly with our own media, bypassing the liberal bias. I'm therefore enclosing a donation towards the Building Blocks Fund and would like the money to go towards the Internet Radio project.

Mr. Webb,
Manchester

Editor's reply: Many thanks. The Building Blocks Fund is now successfully closed, having overshot its target. Our multimedia staff are hard at work on the Internet radio project and Freedom readers will be among the first to know once it's ready to go.

Sir: The Americans are now feeling the full effects of their past policy of actively encouraging 'diversity' in their midst. The flood of mainly Muslim 'refugees' to non-Islamic countries all over the world gives me some indication that not all is as it seems.

After all, how are all these supposedly poor people getting thousands of pounds each to "escape repression"? Who is financing them, and why?

Paul Snell
Derbyshire

Sir: Quite a lot has been made in the media, both in Bradford and nationally, about a circular put out by Muslim 'community leaders' in the city condemning the Sept 11th attacks. But something no journalist has dared to comment upon is the fact that all of them are unelected or self appointed to their elevated positions.

They have in fact very little control over the population they purport to represent. The young Muslim population who have turned Bradford into an economic disaster and the city centre into a no-go zone are totally out of control.

The hapless collections of 'community leaders' who wring their hands and postulate on local television in their own special version of English are powerless to act because they have no constituency and represent nobody.

The latter point would be hilarious if it wasn't such a dangerous situation.

Mark Ashton
Bradford

Sir: I was in Brick Lane police station a few days ago to report a robbery. While I was chatting

SELLAFIELD LATEST

In the wake of the WTC and Pentagon terrorist attacks by Islamic extremists, British Nuclear Fuels Limited (BNFL) claimed that the Sellafield plant in Cumbria could withstand a direct strike from a USAF F-14 fighter travelling at 500mph but no mention was made of the plant being able to withstand a terrorist attack from a civil airliner laden with fuel.

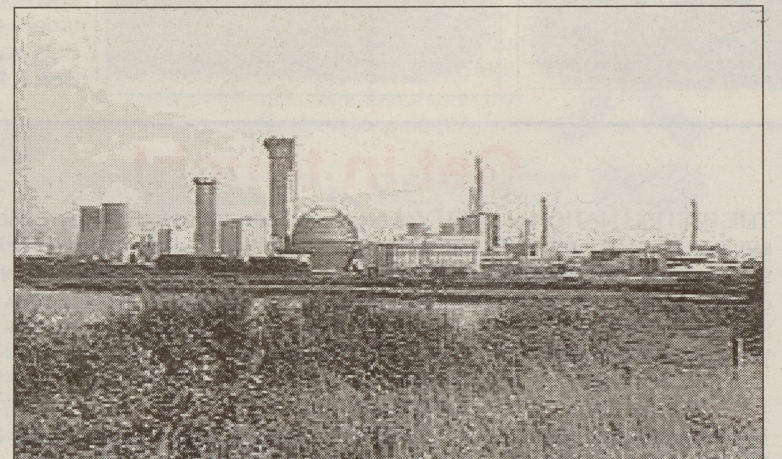

Trans-Atlantic flights from Britain and Europe use the flight path over Cumbria many times daily, the same route taken by the doomed PA-103 brought down such closure would be seen as a victory to terrorism, but the government cannot tell us the truth either.

Emperor Blair came to power in 1997 claiming that his government would open up the eternal cloud of secrecy that hovers over Whitehall with a heavier burden than the fear of a terrorist attack. No chance of the truth here - the Freedom of Information Act 2000 took care of that.

Blair has also given the go-ahead for the most dangerous development yet at the Sellafield complex.

The controversial plans for a

The nuclear power plant at Sellafield in Cumbria by a terrorist bomb on Lockerbie. Clearly the plant's reactors could not withstand such an attack and their radioactive waste could spill out across Cumbria and beyond wiping out many thousands of Britons.

These are dangerous times in the world to be sure and every protective measure against terrorism must be taken.

The government cannot close the troubled plant because of its much-needed fuel supply, and Mox plant for processing nuclear waste have been a public relations problem for Blair & Co for years, but by giving the go-ahead just days after the Manhattan Massacre, they ensured that it became a media non-event, thus silencing opposition which stretches as far as Ireland, whose people are heartily sick of the leaks from Sellafield which have made the Irish Sea one of the most radioactive in the world.

to the officer on duty about the state of the area these days, an Asian man came in and said that he wanted to report that his passport had been stolen.

I thought nothing of it, but waited until he had been passed on to another officer and had moved away before resuming the conversation. "We get at least fifty of those a week in here," I was told. Very occasionally, apparently, the 'theft' may be genuine (but how many people do you know who carry their passports around with them or leave them where thieves can just pick them up?) but the police reckon that the claim is invariably false.

But once passports have been reported as 'stolen', the owners can sell them to gangs running illegal immigration rackets - or send them back 'home' for their cousins to use - without any risk of legal comeback.

Bob J
Isle of Dogs, East London

Sir: I was surprised to see that John Tyndall is complaining about Nick Griffin taking the chance to explain the BNP's policy on voluntary repatriation on radio.

Not only is this line far more 'saleable' to the brainwashed public, but it was Mr. Tyndall himself who authorised the dropping of the old compulsory policy three years ago.

Furthermore, it was Mr. Tyndall who featured on the BBC2 documentary 'The Lost Race' explaining that, when it came to deciding who should stay and who should go, "we would treat each case on its individual merits" - which could only mean that some (hopefully only a small minority) would end up staying here.

So for all the bluster about 'sell-out', the position doesn't really seem to have changed - except for the fact that Mr. Griffin is far better at handling the media!

NORWEGIAN ELECTIONS

Norway's Labour Party has suffered its worst election result since 1924, after an election campaign dominated by anger at high taxes.

With 98% of the votes counted by early Tuesday, Labour had taken only around 24% - down from 35% at the last general election four years ago.

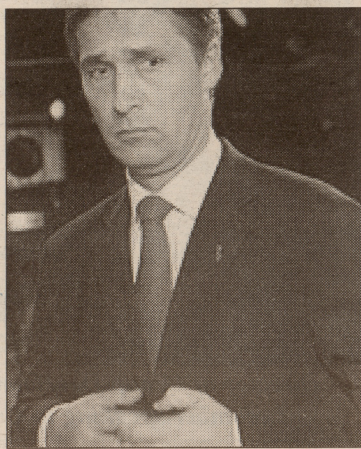

Weeks of horse-trading are now thought likely to lie ahead, as three parties try to form a government - and three men attempt to become Prime Minister.

The Conservatives came second with about 21% - giving

Progress Party leader
Carl Hagen

them 38 seats. But the election also saw the right-wing Progress Party make gains. It won 26 seats, up from 20.

The Progress Party, run by Karl Hagen, has been the victim of many media tricks and smears recently of the type the BNP usually finds itself on the other end of here in Britain.

The Norwegian election gives more hope for a revived Europe, as confirmed by other elections in Italy, Belgium and Austria.

POLL SHOCK IN HAMBURG

"Judge Merciless" Ronald Schill, took 19% of the poll in the Hamburg elections on anti-immigration law and order platform

A law-and-order, anti-immigration politician known locally as "Judge Merciless" has delivered an unexpected blow to the German chancellor, Mr Gerhard Schroeder, with a strong showing in state legislative elections in Hamburg.

The former judge's party, formed less than a year ago, took nearly 19 per cent of the vote. The Judge campaigned on an anti-immigration law and order platform.

Mr Schill, at a campaign rally, repeatedly drilled into minds of listeners that Hamburg's foreign communities - about 20 per cent of the 1.7 million residents - are responsible for 70 per cent of its drug dealing and 50 per cent of its murder rate, the nation's highest.

Mr Schill, 42 has called for the castration of sex offenders, medicating convicted drug dealers and deporting foreigners found guilty of any crime.

Mr Schill states that he wants to half crime in the during his first 100 days in office.

Mr Schill appeared set to realise his ambition to become interior minister and deputy mayor in a coalition with the conservative Christian Democrats and pro-business Free Democrats.

But more significant is the arrival on the scene of a coherent politician of the national right who many now believe will use his success as the springboard for forming a nationalist party similar to Mr Jorg Haider's Freedom Party in Austria.

At least, this is what the liberal media are predicting, we're not so sure. Schill's victory shows just how much dissatisfaction there is with the old parties, and the potential for radical but sensible nationalism. The golden question is whether Schill is the answer or just a Tory safety valve.

In Brief.....

BLACK HISTORY MONTH?

The BBC's adverts for Black History Month have been excruciating. According to the Beeb, the most notable items to celebrate are soul music and low-slung trousers. What's this? BBC racism?

What about the internal combustion engine, conservation, space travel, penicillin, Jumbo jets, symphony orchestras or submarines?

And what about the recording equipment used for recording and distributing that soul music, the materials for those low-slung trousers and the machines that make them, or the broadcasting technology that allows the bigots at the BBC to spread their Politically Correct propaganda?

Was their research department really unable to find a single real and worthwhile invention to credit to the huge number of people around the world who trace their ancestry back to sub-Saharan Africa? Looks like it!

So can we now expect the BBC to run a White History Month? Hardly! But if they did, they could advertise it with every one of the inventions listed above for a start!

NEW BRANCH CONTACTS FORMAT

This year has brought substantial membership growth and new group formation and, together with increased contact details mean that the space for advertising these contacts is getting larger all the time.

Something has to go to free up more space. It has been decided to drastically curtail group advertising in Freedom. Readers who want to contact their local group can still do so - via the appropriate regional office.

Readers who are not covered by an existing group can still see this and are able to come forward as before to start one.

The disadvantage to the new format is that readers wanting to contact their local group cannot do so directly. But this is outweighed by four major advantages. As existing group contact details change they, along with new groups, will cease to be plagued by time-wasting crank mail.

PO Box contact addresses have often been an end in themselves - seen as a virility symbol but, from now on, they will be acquired only if they are needed i.e. if the group is distributing localised literature needing a local address. Most importantly, new groups will be afforded the shelter they sometimes need to become viable. This is especially important because new group formation is about to increase to reflect membership growth outside existing organised areas. And, finally, Freedom will have more space to cover more news and sport - thus looking even more like a regular newspaper.

TV REVIEW: "I'M NOT RACIST, BUT..."

BRITAIN'S multi-racial society is only a success in the eyes of London's chattering classes and trendy liberal day-trippers to East London's Brick Lane Market. To those who actually live and work in the multi-racial society - it's an unmitigated disaster.

That was the verdict of Matthew Taylor's honest investigation (I'm Not Racist, But...) into how the 'white majority' feel about living in a multicultural society.

Such a programme, aired on Channel 4, a television company who have done everything in their power to promote multicultural Britain, is a damning indictment indeed.

The programme showed that the experiment foisted on the British people by immigration policies of the last fifty years has resulted in a bitter and divided society.

What was so important about Matthew Taylor's report was that he sought out people who were, in the beginning, the greatest supporters of immigration into Britain.

It is their change of perception of the situation that made for such riveting viewing and, of course, our expectation that if they have changed their viewpoint, what must be the feelings of the millions of people who weren't sold on the multi-racial experiment in the first place.

Eastender, Terry Penton, joined with Asians to demonstrate against National Front newspaper sellers in the late 1970's.

He fully embraced the multi-racial experiment but now, twenty years on, he and his family are moving out to the suburbs because of the 'tension, segregation and violence' caused by different communities living together.

"Now I want to live amongst my own people", he told Matthew Taylor.

In leafy Sutton Coldfield in the West Midlands, Michelle Plant admitted that in the past she had worked hard to create racial harmony. But now she believed that the British people were the ones being discriminated against.

She, like Terry Penton, admitted to having more in common with and wanting to befriend a white person rather than an Asian with a different history, culture, language and sense of priority. In Bradford local Labour Party activist John Boulton was thoroughly disenchanted at what he saw was favouritism for the city's Asian community over their white counterparts. He cited the two housing estates of the white run-down and dilapidated Ravenscliff and the plush and newly-refurbished Asian Manningham to illustrate his argument.

Preferential treatment was again the problem in Blackburn, where local white butchers were having to pay double the rent of a Turkish Halal butcher. But the most poignant illustration came from Sandra and her daughter Karina in Keighley.

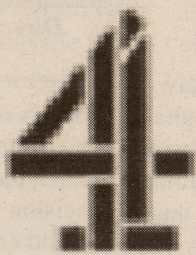

They had welcomed the multi-racial experiment with open arms, enjoying Asian food and dressing in saris.

But now, even for them, things have gone too far with more Asians moving into the town and the town centre become a dangerous place due to marauding gangs.

Parts of Keighley have become no-go areas and the town's Labour MP Ann Cryer and Matthew Taylor were actually stoned by Asian youths during filming. They came under attack when speaking with a group of white pensioners who were complaining that they were being harassed and intimidated away from their bowling green.

The specific feelings expressed during the programme were backed up by an ICM poll conducted between 27th and 29th of July which found that 88% of white Britons wanted to live amongst their own kind while over 90% said they were worried about expressing such a view. In fact, that fear of saying anything in opposition to immigration and the immigrant community, was a theme running through the whole programme. It is hoped that the BNP votes gained in towns like Oldham and Burnley at the General Election is testimony that some people, at least, are beginning to overcome that fear and show their opposition to Britain's multi-racial experiment.

EXCELLENT MEETINGS ALL OVER

Black Country BNP

The hard working Black Country branch held an excellent meeting on a leisure barge on Sunday the 23rd of September. The meeting featured short speeches by local organiser John Salvage, and new recruits Nigel Avery and Adam Davidson. 32 people attended the meeting, and sailed for three hours on the scenic Black Country canalways. A total of £345 was raised for local funds. Also on board were Simon Darby, the party's technology Guru. The new members in attendance said they all agreed that they've found their true political home and family in the BNP.

The leisure barge where Black Country BNP held their meeting

Bexley BNP

Bexley BNP held a lively meeting on the 4th of September with Director of Group Development as main speaker. Chaired by local organiser James Seadon, first up was local candidate Colin

The top table at the Bexley meeting: local candidate Colin Smith, local organiser James Seadon and Director of Group Development Tony Lecomber

Smith who gave a round-up of local activities. After a short break and collection, Mr. Lecomber gave an informative speech on the continual progress of the BNP and recounted some of the publicity the party has been receiving in recent months.

East London BNP

The first meeting on the Isle of Dogs, scene of the BNP's first council election victory, took place on the 12th of September with guest speakers Director of Publicity Paul Golding and Chairman Nick Griffin. Chaired by old-hand Barry Osborne, the meeting attracted over 20 people and after a short social Mr. Golding publicity and initiatives pioneered by the BNP over the last few months. After a break and collection, Chairman Nick Griffin spoke about the terrorist attacks in the USA which happened the day before.

Brighton BNP

Director of Publicity Paul Golding was guest speaker at a meeting of the newly formed Brighton BNP on the 25th of September with around 25 people in attendance. After an introduction by local organiser Darren Copeland, Mr. Golding spoke about the recent terrorist attacks and the scourge of Islamic extremism threatening the West, while also discussing major issues obscured by the attacks. Following Mr. Golding was a question & answer session and a collection which raised funds for the local branch. The meeting was the first in the area for a decade!

Coventry BNP

Tony Lecomber and John Woods were guest speakers at a meeting of Coventry BNP with more than 20 people in attendance, chaired by local organiser Mark Matthews. Attendees were treated to talks from John Woods, local fundholder Marie McKay, and election candidate Edward Sheppard. Tony Lecomber spoke about the time being right for the party to gain ground in the wake of the recent Islamic Fundamentalist atrocities.

Burnley BNP

Pete Rushton was the guest speaker at a meeting of Burnley BNP on the 18th of September. Pete Rushton spoke of the hypocrisy of Tony Blair strutting around acting tough, while allowing extremists like Muslim leaders Abu Hamza and Omar Bakri to walk the streets of Britain! Around 85 local people attended and discussed the standing of candidates in the town next year in the council elections.

Chairman Nick Griffin speaking in East London

Dewsbury BNP

Over sixty people attended September's meeting of Dewsbury BNP where Black Country organiser John Salvage was the guest speaker. After a brief talk by Dewsbury Organiser Nick Cass on the recent events both locally and internationally, a minute's silence was held out of respect for the young 17 year-old white lad Ross Parker, who was murdered the previous week by an Asian gang in Peterborough (see page 11). Mr Salvage spoke about the steady deterioration in the standard of life in Britain since the early 1950s. The meeting was filmed by a TV camera crew who afterwards interviewed members of the audience on the growing appeal of the BNP. A buffet and refreshments were available afterwards, and it was nice to see the camera crew also tucking in! A collection for funds for next year's local elections raised over £350, with one local businessman contributing £100.

Nottingham BNP

The end of September saw a packed meeting of Nottingham BNP with many new faces attending, including a welcome number of ex-Conservatives in the audience of 80. Introduced by Regional Organiser Steve Belshaw, Chairman Nick Griffin spoke first. He explained how Islamic fundamentalism encourages the overthrow of non-Muslim nations, by bloodshed if necessary. Nick went on to explain how the Koran orders its followers to inhabit, and then take control of non-Muslim nations. After an excellent collection, BNP Press Officer Dr. Phil Edwards spoke on how the media demonises the BNP using half truths and untruths, and how his department battles this, mentioning notable victories over the BBC and their sickening hypocrisy. Dr. Edwards ended his speech by saying the British Isles are ours, that whites have always lived here, and that our ancestors fought and died to make this land what it is today - and no one is going to take it from us!

Waltham Forest BNP

Chairman Nick Griffin was guest speaker at a meeting of Waltham

Director of Group Development Tony Lecomber speaking in Coventry

Forest BNP on the 13th September, with around 30 people attending. The gathering saw talks from local activist Johnny Goulden, Richard Brook, Bob James, and finally Nick Griffin who spoke about Islamic extremism. The collection raised £240.

Ulster BNP

Key members and party activists from all over the province of Ulster converged in East Belfast to attend a very important Ulster BNP meeting. Members from all corners of the Province attended and offered input into a meeting which included in its agenda the decision whether or not the BNP should contest wards in Ulster's next council elections. After much discussion it was finally agreed that three wards, that of Tigers Bay in Belfast, Dromore in County Down, and North Belfast would be contested and a candidate for the European Election would be put forward. Three core committee units were elected from those present to take responsibility for each particular ward to be contested. The coup de grace came towards the end of the meeting when it was announced that the Ulster branch of the BNP would shortly be purchasing their own digital duplicator. Ulster organiser Andy McLorie said: "This would be the vital tool that would provide the economical means to produce the 'home grown' leaflets necessary to get the BNP's message across on a monthly basis for the next three and a half years to every potential voter in these selected wards".

Bolton BNP

Around 30 members and supporters attended a local meeting in Bolton, following a successful barbecue held earlier in the month. It was chaired by local organiser Ian Hague, who started by giving a round up of local BNP activity, and then went on to talk about the recent events in the USA, stating that they were the same breed of Muslim extremists who were behind the recent riots in the North of England. After a short break and a collection which raised £105 pounds for local funds, Ian went on to introduce the National Press Officer Dr Phil Edwards, who gave a talk on his dealings with the national media. He touched on such subjects as handling smears and press enquiries, and the role of the media monitoring unit, and how the party had built a new image under the leadership of Nick Griffin.

Dagenham BNP

The relaunch meeting of Barking & Dagenham BNP on the 29th of September was the first activity in the borough for at least two years. Two dozen people heard Director of Group Development Tony Lecomber and East London activist Bob James give well received speeches. Tony's talk concentrated on the party's prospects both nationally and specifically in the East London area, while Bob outlined the way that more and more money are being given over to 'minorities'.

CAMP EXCALIBUR 2001

Camp Excalibur was the first of the Young BNP's new youth camps. For the first time ever, Young BNP people, between the ages of 14 and 25, from all over Britain travelled to North Wales for the weekend of the 29th and 30th of September to take part in a virtually adult-free weekend of outdoor pursuits and excitement.

Around 30 young nationalists travelled from as far as Sussex and Yorkshire to attend the Young BNP event of the year.

After putting up their tents and having a bit of food, everyone headed off into the Welsh mountains to enjoy some climbing and abseiling.

On return to camp, everyone was split into four groups, and while two groups ran off for a friendly game of paintball in a nearby wooded field, the other two groups remained on the campsite, cooking the evening meal and playing a variety of ball games, including rounders and football.

Later, everyone enjoyed the warm evening sitting around the campfire talking, eating, drinking, and listening to patriotic music; everyone finally hit the sack sometime after 2am!

After a traditional English breakfast on Sunday morning, along with traditional Welsh mountain weather, everyone went to a nearby large lake for a 3 hour session of canoeing, which naturally degenerated into a large water-fight and mock naval battles!

After changing clothes and catching some lunch, everyone present headed back to the campsite to take part in more paintball, before finally making their way home in the late afternoon.

The YBNP's first Camp Excalibur passed off without a hint of trouble from anyone, gaining press coverage all over Wales, and leaving Labour and Plaid Cymru looking like big spoilsports for trying to ruin a fun weekend for a group of young nationalists!

BNP PRESSURE STOPS ANOTHER ASYLUM HOSTEL

Residents of the Grimsby suburb of Scartho were shocked and frightened when a property developer, Cosmopolitan Life, announced plans to turn Springfield Hall into a hostel for 100 asylum seekers. The company believed that this would make more money than housing British students.

Activists from Hull and Grimsby responded with a massive leafleting drive, much to the delight of local residents.

The growing strength of local opposition to the plan led to the council making the surprise decision to reject the planning application.

Cosmopolitan Life initially announced that it intended to appeal but, with news that the BNP was playing a major role in organising resistance to their scheme being widely publicised, changed their minds and dropped their application. This latest victory hasn't only led to a big increase in support for the BNP in the area.

It has also shown, once again, that plans by greedy developers to force asylum seekers on communities which have managed to remain overwhelmingly British can be stopped by sensible political action. All it takes is for a few good men and women in the area to get active with the British National Party.

NEW FAMILY MEMBERSHIP

With the BNP working hard to develop itself as a family party, a large number of our organisers and activists have asked if it would be possible to bring in a Family Membership, so as to encourage entire families to join and get active.

Family Membership will cost £35 per year. It is available for 2002 with immediate effect and entitles a man and a woman living as man and wife and with at least one child (of any age – because this category is open only to families, not to couples). Any of their children between the ages of 14 – 16 will, if they wish, be entitled to be members of the YBNP Supporters' Club free, and Family Membership will also cover any children between the ages of 16 – 18.

All eligible family members will receive individual membership cards, but only one British Nationalist bulletin will be sent per family.

OPERATION WHITE VOTE

The BNP this month launched "Operation White Vote" with the aim of getting as many of our supporters as possible in our target areas on the electoral register entitling them to vote before the closing deadline on the 15th of October.

A leaflet template was uploaded to our website and distributed to organisers, prompting activists and supporters up and down the country to organise leaflet drives in their target wards.

In this age of 'grey' politics, may ordinary people just can't be bothered to make the effort, but, as our leaflet explains, if you don't vote, you have no right to complain!

The liberal-left can't complain (and haven't) as our campaign mirrored their multi-million pound project in London called "Operation Black Vote".

IS VOTING A WASTE OF TIME?

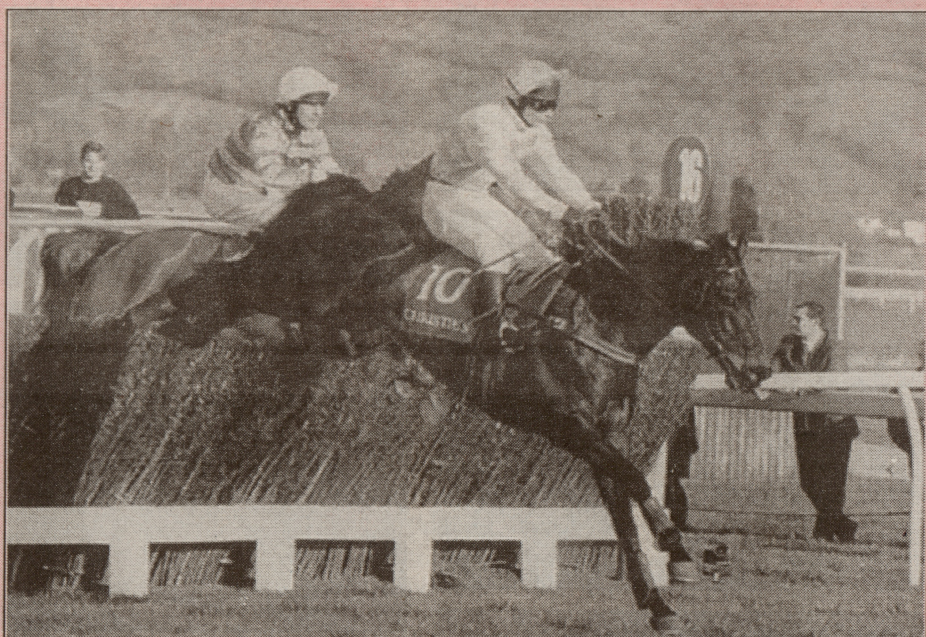

When you have got nothing to lose, you can only win! But please don't forget to register your name on the Electoral Register before Oct. 15th.

DON'T GET MAD - GET EVEN!

WHEN BREEDING COMES TO THE FORE

3 Mile Novice Chases: A special type of horse is required

OCTOBER sees the National Hunt season get into full swing, although it remains to be seen what effect the devastating foot and mouth epidemic will have on racecourses and stables in the affected areas of Cumbria and Northumberland.

According to the TV pundits one of the hardest races to find the winners of during the winter months is the three mile novice chase. Form in these contests means nothing with the runners either stepping up from hurdle races or having their first outings on a racecourse.

It's the sort of race where you feel like sticking a pin in to make a selection but, in fact, there is a much better way of trying to find the winner and that's by backing the horses that are bred to win such races.

A three mile chase in bottomless going for inexperienced jumpers takes some completing, and it takes a specially bred horse to be able to last out and win such a race. Sires to look out for who regularly turn out 3 mile chase winners are; Buckley, Carlingford Castle, Damister Machiavellian, Primitive Rising, Seymour Hicks, and Shardari.

These sires, all born in the 1980s, are regular or promising producers of horses who excell over fences in distances of three miles and over.

You have a lot better chance of finding the winner of such races if you know the winning record and distance statistics of National Hunt jumping sires.

NON-LEAGUE PLAY-OFFS

THERE'S going to be more to play for in the Unibond League, (formerly the Northern Premier League), this season with play-offs introduced for the first time in any non-league competition.

The normal two-up and two-down between the Premier Division and the First Division has added spice this season.

The third from bottom club in the Premier Division will join the 3rd, 4th and 5th clubs in the First Division in a knock-out competition of two semi-finals and a final to see who can gain the vacant place in the Premier Division.

It's early days yet, but there are indications that clubs from the North West are staking a claim for those play-off places with Ashton United, Radcliffe Boro, Rossendale United and Chorley all showing good form during September.

It's just not cricket!

IT was an odds-on certainty that after the BNP's excellent General Election showing in the North-West on June 6th that the media would be out in force at the beginning of the football season looking for links between the party and some of the well-supported Football League clubs in the area.

At the end of August Burnley's home game with Manchester City came under the spotlight and The Independent was upset that from an attendance of 20,000 their reporter could their Ethnic Minorities Officer. Together with community worker Mashuq Hussein they visit local schools coaching youngsters and promoting the club.

But Mashuq Hussein says it's not enough. "If Burnley put more funding in, we could really build bridges; involve the players as role models, and take the football club into the Asian community with a range of programmes."

Burnley's chief executive Andrew Watson says the club are doing everything they can to attract Asian fans to Turf Moor, considering the club's precarious financial position.

He bluntly sums it up that: "Most Asians aren't football fans."

Nationwide Second Division club Bury implemented the Football Task Force's recommendations when in September 1999 they signed Indian International Bhaichung Bhutia from East Bengal. He became the first Asian player ever to appear in the

Pakistan Playing Cricket: Plenty of 'local' support identify only one Asian supporting Burnley.

Football clubs have been put under great pressure in recent years to recruit ethnic minorities to both their playing staff and supporter base.

The 1998 Football Task Force demanded that clubs start employing black and Asian staff, and the anti-racist "Kick It Out" campaign also lobbied clubs to make concessions to entice more ethnic minorities to attend games.

Despite these efforts a report last month from the Sir Norman Chester Centre for Football Research found that, "... most football clubs in areas with large ethnic minority populations attract very few members of those communities to their grounds."

Burnley have certainly done their bit to encourage the town's Pakistani population to Turf Moor.

Despite making a loss of £1.6 million last year they appointed Burnley trialist Nourredine Maamria, a former Tunisian Under-21 international, as English Football League and the club hoped that having a hero from their homeland would entice the local Indian community to Gigg Lane.

Unfortunately the venture was a financial disaster for the cash-strapped club with Bhutia struggling to acclimatise, making only 23 appearances in two years and the majority of those as substitute.

The response from the Indian community was also a bitter disappointment, with little or no interest shown in the club's initiative.

Bury supporter Phil Ritchie echoes Andrew Watson's views, "Asians are not into football, they like cricket."

That supposition seems to be borne out by the fact that one ethnic minority at least were out in force in May and June with over 50,000 fervent flag-waving fans at Old Trafford, Headingly and Trent Bridge raising the roof for England's first test series of the summer... unfortunately though there was more chagrin for The Independent - they were supporting Pakistan!
